

connectedness

Schedule in time to maintain positive social connections with those who nourish your soul (have a cup of tea via phone or skype with a friend or colleague; take your own cup of tea and sit outside talking with a neighbour).

AND Connect with yourself – yoga, journaling & meditation can be great for this.

time in nature

Try to spend a minimum 2 hours per week sensorially engaging with nature (i.e. shoes off, smelling, seeing, hearing - being engaged & being still in nature).

nutrition

Try to increase intake of plant based & non-processed foods; drink more water; reduce alcohol (never use it to numb stress). Try to be more mindful when making food choices & while eating.

5 strategies for less stress while social distancing

©Blooming Minds 2020

movement

Try to increase your daily movement to build overall fitness, improving sleep, mood & energy cycles. If you're not very active, start increasing your activity levels with 10 minutes of movement at a time. You can go for a walk, or search or online videos of an activity you've always wanted to try but never got around to: yoga, Tai Chi or a boxing class)

sleep hygiene

Try to get 1 hour sleep for every 2 hours awake; stick to set bed time & wake up time; create a calming sleep environment; stop device use at least 45 mins before bed. Keep your usual sleep cycle (don't stay up all night watching movies).